CHEDDARHEAD DICTIONARY

If you think you can deck yourself out in green and gold and walk around occasionally bellowing "Go-Pack-Go!" and qualify as a Wisconsin native... you're dead wrong. Youse gotta know the lingo too, ya-know. For your enjoyment, here's an updated list of Wisconsinisms.

Ain-a-hey: placed at the end of a profound statement.

Bart: a Green Bay institution who doesn't need a last name; (see "Vince").

Blaze orange: what deer hunters and cold-weather Packers fans wear at Lambeau.

Bubbler: to the rest of the world outside Wisconsin's borders, it is known as a drinking fountain.

Budge: to merge without permission; as in "Don't you budge in line."

By: to; near; as in "Let's go by Chi-Chi's."; it has nothing to do with a purchase.

Come-here-once: a beckoning call to another Cheddarhead.

Couple-two-tree: more than one; as in "Delmer and I drank a couple-two-tree beers."

Cripes: a Wisconsin expletive.

Cripes-sake: a mild Wisconsin expletive.

Crymany-cripes-sake: a wild Wisconsin expletive.

D: a substitute for words beginning with "TH;" as in "Dat guy over dere in dah Bears shirt is a FIB."

FIB: an acronym; (all we can tell you is that the "I" stands for "Illinois")

Fish fry: a Friday night dining ritual.

Fleet Farm: a Cheddarhead's answer to Bloomingdales.

Frozen tundra: Lambeau Field.

Hey: placed at the beginning or end of phrases for emphasis, as in "Hey, how 'bout them Packers?" or "How 'bout them Packers, hey?"

Humdinger: a beauty; as in "dat crappy youse caught up-nort is a real humdinger."

John Deere: a Cheddarhead's other vehicle.

Mowakee: Wisconsin's largest city; just down the lake from Trivers and Mantwoc.

N-so?: a word inserted at the end of a statement; used as a substitute for "right?" or "correct?"

Oh, yah: skepticism.

Parish picnics: social events of the summer.

Polka: what you do at parish picnics.

Pop: a non-alcoholic drink.

Sheepshead: card game.

Skeeter: Wisconsin state bird.

Up nort: where you go on vacation.

Vince: the other Green Bay icon who doesn't need a last name for recognition; (see "Bart").

Yah-hey: affirmative; as in "you're right."

You-betcha: affirmative; as in "Yah-hey."

Youse: pronounced "YOOS;" it means "you" as in "are youse guys goin' up nort?"

Youper: someone from up nort.

EATING AND WINNING AND WINNING

It'll be time to tailgate again next weekend prior to the Packers/Vikings game on November 5th. Should be more fun than a couple two-tree free fish fries at a parish picnic up-nort, N-so? Once again, free brats, burgers, Packer Chris' German potato salad and all the fixin's for CFGBPB members. You might want to bring your own beverages. It all starts at 10:30am.

Also, today some lucky CFGBPB will be the lucky winner of an L-A Gear Packer Coat. Good luck!
