MORE BUCKS FOR BRETT

Brett Favre's agent says he hopes to start talks with the Packers on a contract extension this week. Favre's in the third year of a five-year, 19-million dollar deal. The M-V-P quarterback reportedly wants a seven-year deal worth 50-million dollars. But the Packers say they would rather give him Altoona instead.

THE FISH BOWL

The stadium where the Miami Dolphins play has a new name. For nine years, it was Joe Robbie Stadium. Then for two weeks it was known as Pro Player Park. This week they're calling it Pro Player Stadium. Whatever. No matter the name of the place, the Dolphins will always be an AFC team.

SHOPPING BETWEEN QUARTERS

Forget to wear green and gold for the game? Or did you accidentally get a little wing sauce on your sleeve? Well, don't fret. Now you can purchase Packers shirts and other stuff during the games. Logan's Sports Bar will be selling the merchandise at the front of the restaurant by the front door. Also available for the first time in Florida... copies of the Happy Schnapps Combo compact disc titled "Raise It!" It's a classic and is second only to the Beatles' "Abbey Road." "Raise It!" features our theme song... "The Bears Still Suck Polka." Now that's something every true Packers fan should own. Walk over and check it out during the next time out.

JUST LIKE BACK UP NORT, HEY!

Now you can enjoy a genuine Wisconsin style Friday fish fry and still live in Florida. Each and every Friday night, Logan's Sports Bar features the best fish fry this side of Beloit. And, if you're a CFGBPB member, you get it at 10% off. Just let the waitress know which side of the fish you want the 10% taken off of. (ha.)

HURRAY FOR HOLLYWHITE!

Reggie White will be starring in a movie that will open this Wednesday in Green Bay and Milwaukee and then nationwide sometime in early 1997. White plays Reggie Knox, a pro football player who is persuaded to retire and become a high school coach in order to straighten out a troubled 16-year old. Reggie says "it's a very spiritual script." The title of the movie is "Reggie's Prayer," but (as usual) we have a few suggestions that we think are much better. >>> "Da Minister Of De-Sense" (Preacher educates punk... get it?)

>>> "Reggie And The Bandit" or "North Packer Forty" (It would borrow from the film "The Longest Yard" and simply be an excuse to feature a cameo of Burt Reynolds and have a football thrown into his crotch.)

>>> "Everything You Wanted To Know About Sacks, But Were Afraid To Ask" (Poetic, no?)

>>> "The Bears Still Suck" (Actually, it has nothing to do with the film, but a lot of us Cheddarheads would easily pay $7.50 just to see those opening credits on the big screen.)

As you're digesting your bratwurst while watching the Packers play, here's a nice picture of the Oscar Meyer Weinermobile for you to enjoy. (chitty-chitty-burp-burp.)
